HEADQUARTERS BULLETIN.

Presentation of Gen. Warner's Portrait. Geo. H. Thomas Post, No. 8, Kansas City, Mo., held an open meeting Tuesday evening, May 21. Among those present were Commander-in-Chief Warner, Adj't-Gen. E. F. Weigel, Ass't Adj't-Gen. E. G. Granville; T. L. Johnson, Aid-de-Camp to the Commander-in-Chief, of Chicago, Ill.; Col. W. | the Encampment was a great success. F. Cloud, of Topeka, Kan.; Judge H. C. McDougal, CALIFORNIA,-Commander of Farragut Post, No. 3; Maj. Ross Griffin, Past Commander of Farragut Post, No. 3, and others. Commander-in-Chief Warner and Ass't Adj't-Gen Granville are Past Commanders of this Post. The most important feature of the meeting was the presentation to the Post by the lady | Cowles, artist, Mrs. L. Trefrey, of a life-size portrait of Gen. Warner. The presentation on behalf of the lady was made by Judge H. C. McDougal, Communder of Farragut Post, No. 3, Kansas City. His address, which is an excellent one, was received with tumultuous applause by the assembled veterans. Judge McDougal spoke as follows: COMMANDER THORNE, COMRADES AND LADIES: Looking backward over the life of any given person who has been successful in any vocation, I core not what, you will find that the key which unlocked the door to that success was Duty well performed. To-night we meet to do honor to a neighbor, friend and comrade whose honorable success exemplifies the truth of this proposition. The sound of the first shot upon Fort Sumter was heard in every city, in every hamlet, on every farm throughout this broad land, Before its echo died away, a young man, living in a village away up in the State of Wiscousin, threw aside his school books and volunteered to help save the Union. From that time up to the day the rebellion was crushed and the Union restored this young man was at the front. He wore the chevrons, the bars, the golden leaf; he served with honor to himself, credit to his native State, credit to the army; he

The first positive evidence, however, which he gave to the world of the fact that he possessed the foresight of a prophet and the brains of a statesnian was when, at the close of the war, he left his old home by the lakes and located in Kansas City. This magnificent city was then a straggling hamlet along the bluffs of the Missouri River, and was just emerging from that period of its history when was known as Westport Landing. Here, as in the war, he has at all times and under all circumstances done his duty; and so well has this been done, and so efficient and able and earnest and valuable his services, that the history of Kansas City, with its population of 200,000 live, active, industrious people, could not be written without the mention of his name.

His coming here was not then heralded by the press; no delegation of citizens met him; for his entire stock in trade was a good education and that best and most valued of all human experiences, life in the army in time of war. But he then possessed, as he does to-night, attributes which are better than either fame or gold or both-sterling integrity, nation to work, a true heart, a generous hand and a perfect wealth of brain and mus-

performed his duty in every station in life, and so had he endeared himself to his old comrades in | S., E. A. John arms, that at the last National Encampment held at Columbus, O., he received an honor seldom ever conferred upon man, in there receiving at the willtion of Commander-in-Chief. In the performance of duty-duty to country, duty to family, duty to friends, duty to comrades, duty to the city of his adoption—he has challenged the respect and confidence of men; won the confidence and admiration of women. As a modest recognition of the esteem in which these services in doing his duty are held at his home by those who know him best, and out of liment to him personally, as well as to his Post, a lady who possesses the rare gift of transferring faces and forms and scenes to the canvas eterof this Post. Mrs. L. Trefrey, of this city, has er; Q. M. S., Alexander Harner.

Addresses eulogistic of Gen, Warner were also made by Maj. Ross Griffin and others, and the meeting closed by the singing of "America,"

Maj. Eugene F. Weigel was born in the Palatinate, Germany, June 15, 1845. His father first settled in Mascontah, Ill., in 1850, and in 1851 moved to St. Louis, Mo. The young man enlisted in August, 1861, when 16 years old, as a private in the 3d U. S. Reserve Corps, afterward changed Hope; Adj't, H. W. Ogelsby. to 4th Mo. After a year's service in the field he KANSAS.was promoted First Lieutenant and Adjutant of the 83d Ill., and participated as such in the battles of Chanceliorsville, Gettysburg, Wauhatchie and Chattanooga; was promoted Captain of Co. F. and so served during campaign to Atlanta. On the march to the sea he served as Aid on the staff of Maj.-Gen. A. S. Williams, commanding Twentieth Corps, and was breveted Major U. S. Volunteers for gallast services, and was mustered out in June, 1865, being then just 20 years of age. Maj. Weigel joined Blair Post, No. 1, at St. Louis on its organization in | Shupp. 1879; was Post Commander in 1885; member of for St. Louis.

Such is a brief record of the true soldier who presides as Adjutant-General at National Grand Army Headquarters in Kansas City, and of whom Commander-in-Chief Warner said in presence of the writer a few days since: "The Grand Army of the Republic has had many able Adjutants-General in the past, but never one that excelled Maj. Weigel.
